History

Ray Martin (1918-1988) was a composer, arranger and conductor for BBC-TV, Columbia Records, RCA, and motion pictures. He was born in Vienna, Austria where he graduated from the Vienna Academy for Music and Dramatic Arts. At the Academy he studied violin and majored in music theory. In 1938 Martin moved to London and earned a living performing with Caroll Levis' amateur talent shows and with various revues. During the second World War he applied his fluency in German and French in the service of the British Army Military Police and Intelligence Section.

John McMillan of BBC radio hired Ray Martin in 1946 and from 1948-1955 he was the resident conductor-arranger for BBC Radio then BBC TV. He also worked for Columbia Records as Artists and Repertoire Director from 1950-1958. While at Columbia he produced over two thousand records including thirty albums and singles as an artist himself. More than a dozen of his own recordings made the Top Ten Best-Seller Lists. He sometimes wrote under the pseudonyms Tony Simmonds and Lester Powell. He was Assistant Head of the Music Department for the Associate British Picture Corporation in Elstree, England from 1956-1958.

Ray Martin immigrated to the United States in 1957 first settling in New York then moving to Los Angeles in 1968. He was Artists and Repertoire Producer and advisor on European product for RCA from 1960-62 and Vice President of Music Production and half owner of RPM Associates, Inc. from 1960-68. RPM created music for commercials and industrial films. In Los Angeles he composed and arranged music for the RCA and other labels. His Living Brass albums for RCA whose scores are in the collection are well regarded.

Provenance

Ray Martin donated his scores to the Library in 1972 prior to his return to England in the same year. He moved to South Africa in 1980 where he lived out his remaining years.

Scope & Contents Note

The Ray Martin collection contains the original manuscript scores in the composers own hand and numbered 1 through 342. In all there are a total of nearly 600 pieces when the unnumbered individual songs written for twenty-one of his albums are included. All the scores are stamped with his American Federation of Musicians registration number.

Organization

Ray Martin assigned unique sequential numbers to his scores. For boxes 1-37 the collection arrangement follows his numbering system and combines the location of the score with his number in this pattern [box number]-[Ray Martin's number]. Thus 01-005 is the score for Careless Lips which is number 5 in box 1. In some instances, Ray Martin's numbering skips out of sequence. We have marked these numbers as "no score for this number" for the purpose of clarity. It is possible that he missed a number or that the score associated with this number was not part of the donation. The numbers for boxes 38 and 39 were created for the finding guide.
